Dear Terry,

Huffington Post is now attacking the Media Research Center's yet-to-be-released documentary film, which details the disastrous effects of President Obama's War on Coal.

A few months ago, MRCTV sent a camera crew to the communities of southern West Virginia to document the effects of Obama's War on Coal. The team found widespread despair and zero hope that things would turn around. Countless homes faced foreclosure, storefronts were shuttered, and charitable organizations were overwhelmed with requests for help, all thanks to the dictates of Obama's Environmental Protection Agency.

A few days ago, the well-known leftist news outlet Huffington Post published an article that began:

"The right-wing Media Research Center is getting into the crowdfunding business, setting up a Kickstarter page to raise \$15,000 for "completing the production and marketing" of a "short documentary" about "the devastating human toll of the EPA's war on coal," to be called Collateral Damage."

Despite not having viewed the documentary, HuffPo believes it "will be on the dishonest side," and is hard at work trying to prevent this important MRC project from happening. We're counting on you to help us ensure that *Huffington Post* doesn't get its way.

They also claimed that criticizing Obama is "rather pointless," because he is not running for re-election. The point isn't to criticize Obama; it's to shine a light on the impact that reckless policies have on real people's lives!

We can't let these die-hard liberals stop this important project. These people's voices need to be heard. That's why we're asking you, our faithful supporters, to help us fight back against *Huffington Post* and push on with the production of this important film.

The MRC must raise $15,000 by the end of August in order to continue production of this important short film. We need your help to achieve this goal.

Please visit our Kickstarter page to get a sneak preview of Collateral Damage, and help us give a voice to the residents of coal country whose lives have been destroyed by reckless policies dreamt up by ideologues in Washington.

Thank you so much.

Sincerely,

David Martin
Executive Vice President
MRC Action

P.S. Please consider chipping in whatever you can spare to help fund this important project.
